Latest fund report

In June, Danske Invest Hedge Fixed Income Global Value Fund provided a return of 2.55%. Year to date the return is 12.09%. Since inception in June 2018, the portfolio has provided a return of 91.51%. June was a positive month for risky assets after the very volatile start to Q2. Tariff fears subsided further during June with the risk of an immediate halt to global trade out of the way for now. Despite this, there is still market concerns regarding a slowdown in economic activity in the US while leading indicators for Europe has been holding up. In the US inflation fears persist as the impact of already higher tariffs is feeding through.

2025 has the potential to remain volatile. Market focus remains centred on the next announcements from Trump regarding geopolitics or the reemergence of tariff negotiations as the 90 day pause approach the end. In addition, uncertainty regarding the rate path from both the ECB and the Fed remains high.

Activity in the EUR fixed income market traditionally slows down over the summer with almost no new issuance. Looking ahead, activity will pick up in September. We have seen throughout the first months of the year that global bond issuers are ready to take advantage of periods with lower volatility to issue debt. The need for additional funding to increased defence spending is putting upside risk to this year's sovereign funding outlook. We expect high supply to start again in September

At the end of June the portfolio risk level (in terms of Value-at-Risk) is 38% below our maximum risk limit, which is slightly lower compared to the end of last month. We are ready to increase or decrease the risk utilisation in the fund in the coming months depending on the opportunities that may arise.

Historical returns are no reliable indicator of future returns. It should be noted that monthly returns (in per cent) are non-additive.
